

NO NEW YORK STATE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

On November 7, 2017, New Yorkers will vote on holding a convention to rewrite the NYS Constitution.

Republican control could bring the Trump agenda to New York.

OUR ELECTED OFFICIALS ARE URGING US TO VOTE NO

“Now is not the time for a constitutional convention that would risk hard-fought gains for organized labor, working families and women. We should instead focus our defenses on the threats from Washington aimed at New York’s values and quality of life.”

Gale Brewer, Manhattan Borough President

“I do not believe a Constitutional Convention would deliver progressive solutions to our most pressing problems. I am urging New Yorkers to vote no. We cannot afford to put at risk such fundamental rights as public education, worker’s compensation, tenant protections, and collective bargaining.”

Scott Stringer, NYC Comptroller

“A Constitutional Convention is not just a risk, it’s a mathematically guaranteed loss. With delegates elected by state senate districts where Republicans have the upper hand - coupled with the fact that elected officials can run for those positions - the idea of a progressive convention, let alone a ‘people’s convention,’ is a fantasy.”

Daniel J. O’Donnell, State Assemblymember

“A constitutional convention would put our public pensions and right to collectively bargain at risk. It isn’t the community-driven, people-focused change our state needs.”

Brian A. Benjamin, State Senator

“The Republican, hyper-gerrymandered election lines could pack in conservative delegates who would undo decades’ worth of hard-fought civil rights victories, labor protections, and more. Vote ‘No.’”

Mark Levine, City Council

“I am voting ‘No’ on the NY State Constitutional Convention ballot issue.”

Helen Rosenthal, City Council

Turn Over Your Ballot
Vote NO on Prop. 1

The New York Times Says, "Vote No"