

Lucy Lang

Lucy Lang most recently served as Director of the Institute for Innovation in Prosecution at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, a national criminal justice reform non-profit. Lucy previously served as an Assistant District Attorney in Manhattan, where she investigated and prosecuted homicides, domestic violence and gun crimes and served as Special Counsel for Policy and Projects, creating a college-in-prison course to develop innovative criminal justice policy.

She has spent the past three years teaching that class in NY State prisons. Lucy is a graduate of Swarthmore College, where she serves on the Board of Managers, and Columbia Law School, where she was the Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Gender and Law and later served as a Lecturer-in-Law.

Lucy was named a 2015 Rising Star by the New York Law Journal, was a 2017 Presidential Leadership Scholar, was a 2019 Aspen Society Fellow, and is currently Vice Chair of the American Bar Association Criminal Justice Section, a member of the NY State Bar Association Task Force on Racial Injustice and Police Reform, a member of the Prison Art + Aesthetics Project, a member of the Council on Criminal Justice, and a Term Member of the Council on Foreign Relations. She has published on criminal justice issues in the New York Times, The Washington Post, The Atlantic, the New York Daily News, and many others, and is a mother of two and the author of March On! a children's book about the 1915 women's march, celebrating this summer's centennial of women's suffrage.