

Darializa Avila Chevalier is a working-class Afro-Latina who has been organizing in upper Manhattan for a fairer, more equitable, and more affordable New York City since she was a teenager. She has successfully organized the release of immigrants held by ICE, including Mahmoud Khalil. She helped organize alumni support for the encampments at Columbia against Columbia's support for the genocide. She has also spoken up about her alma mater's land grab in Harlem, and corporate landlords. During Zohran's momentous campaign, Darializa was a local manager for field leads. She is an educator, a renter, and an organizer. She is running on a Babies Not Bombs platform advocating to shift our nation's focus from spending money on war and militarism home and abroad. She is fighting for affordable dignified housing, to end child poverty, fully fund education, and to abolish ICE. She is fighting for communities from Harlem to Kingsbridge, and not corporations. She is not taking any corporate pac or AIPAC money.
