President's Report

By Lauren Williams

Our January meeting was one full of information and updates as we welcomed Congressman Jerald Nadler (10th Congressional District), Commissioner Julie Menin from the City's Department of Consumer Affairs (DCA), Community Development Officer Ahmed Tigani with the office of the Manhattan Borough President, and Land Use Committee Member Sheldon J. Fine from Community Board 7. District Leaders Cynthia Doty and Bob Botfeld also reported on petitioning activities, upcoming election dates, and information for those interested in being poll workers. The nominating committee slate for the 2016 Board of Directors also was presented. No additional nominations were made. The election of the TPID Board of Directors will occur at the February 10 club meeting. We also recognized retiring Board member Ernestine Gallagher for her years of leadership and many contributions to the Club.

Congressman Nadler is seeking re-election and, at the present time, has no announced opposition for the Democratic Primary. He reported on recent congressional activity that included reauthorization of health benefits for 9/11 Responders, passage of a $20 billion transportation bill which features funding for Amtrak's Northeast Corridor, and successful legislation to protect pregnant workers. He also commented on same-sex marriage becoming law (he was a lead sponsor), his "yes" vote for the Iran deal, and "no" vote on TPP.

Commissioner Menin noted that the City's DCA is the country's largest with a staff of 450. DCA operates 30 empowerment centers, licenses nearly 80,000 businesses, enforces labor laws, and regulates consumer products. The office also investigates issues such as scams affecting consumers, overcharging by grocery stores, predatory lenders among auto dealers, paid sick leave infractions, and questionable bank charges. Other DCA roles include assisting and informing consumers, offering free financial counseling, and enforcing business laws, often in cooperation with other City agencies. DCA is available by calling 311, or going online at nyc.gov/consumers, or on its social media sites.

Our closing presenters, Ahmed Tigani and Sheldon Fine, provided a status report on the Mayor's rezoning plan. Tigani commented on the responsibilities of the Manhattan Borough President's (MBP) office and its mandated role in the city's land-use process. He referenced work by the MPB planning staff and their collaborative efforts with the City's Community Boards to develop recommendations for the use and development of land. He said the Borough

President serves as a bridge between Community Boards and City Planning – between community concerns and the administration. Fine commented on Community Board 7's (CB7) review of the proposed plan and its possible impacts on the community including schools, transportation, sanitation and safety, small mom and pop businesses, affordable housing, and architectural and historical diversity. They encouraged us to follow the plan's ongoing development on the CB7 at <http://www.nyc.gov/html/mancb7/html/home/home.shtml>.

At our February meeting, we will hear from candidates (or their representatives) for the 13th Congressional District. The candidates are Suzan Johnson Cook, Adriano Espallat, Mike Gallagher, Guillermo Linares, Bill Perkins, Adam Clayton Powell IV, Clyde Williams, and Keith Wright. We also will hold the election for the Club's 2016 Board of Directors. Please join Three Parks or renew your membership so you qualify to vote in the upcoming months. You will find our membership form online at www.threeparksdems.org or on page 7 of this newsletter.

Ellen Flax, Treasurer—is the director of a foundation that supports causes that benefit women in the U.S. and Israel, and serves as the rabbi of several local elder-care facilities. She was active in the storefront during the 2012, 2008 and 2004 elections and would be delighted to serve another term as Treasurer.

Lorraine Zamora, Corresponding Secretary upon retiring from her career as a professional fundraiser, Lorraine joined TPID as a volunteer for the 2012 Obama campaign and became a board member in 2013. Wendy Dannett—is a long-time progressive and has been a member of Three Parks since 2000. She's been on the board for four years and feels that board membership provides an opportunity for her involvement with campaigns and elections, and her input on issues such as tracking, Indian Point, social security and TPP. She is proud of the Club's efforts on behalf of public education, housing, and local community issues.

Ernestine Gallagher—is a longtime member of Three Parks and member of the Board. Ernestine has worked on many campaigns over the years and has organized the TPID annual holiday party every year. She also is active in Frederick Douglass Houses.

Other volunteer work includes being a Board member of Community Healthcare Network which runs eleven clinics in low income NYC neighborhoods; Advisory Council of Citizens' Committee for Children, a non-partisan issues advocacy organization; and the Public Interest Law Foundation at Columbia.

Erl Kimmich, Membership Secretary -- With the computer skills and attention to detail needed for the job, Erl (an energy efficiency consultant and former construction contractor) is well qualified for this position. He joined TPID during the 2008 Obama storefront campaign and has served on the Board for several years as one of our "audio engineers." He enjoys tabling on the issues, petitioning, and street campaigns, and promises to work to keep our meetings informative, thought provoking and inspiring-of-action. With 2015 a "quiet" election year, he looks forward to focusing on issues and mobilizing neighbors and members to action.

Marie Lunn—has been active in Three Parks for ten years and a Board member for six years. She has worked on several campaigns, participated in tabling and petitioning, and worked at the 2012 Obama/Biden Campaign Center.

Betsy Malcolm—an attorney by training, Betsy has been active in local politics since moving to the UWS. Her prior work in support of marriage equality keeps her attention focused on Albany and the state legislature. Her special interests include promoting campaign finance and ethics reform, and support for GENDA's efforts to guarantee equal rights for the transgender community. Betsy worked on both Obama campaigns and plans to be active in achieving a Democratic majority in the State Senate in 2016.

He managed the Club's data base for eight years, and has worked on rezoning campaigns and for Club endorsed candidates. Current webmaster. Club Parliamentarian. County Committee member. Employment: The Midwest Academy, a training school for progressive issue organizers. Vice-Chair, Democratic Socialists of America. Steve looks forward to helping coordinate the Club's participation for the reauthorization of rent stabilization which expires in June 2015, and for home rule for New York City.

Merle McEldowney—originally from Los Angeles, she fell in love with the Upper West Side and moved here in 2005 after living in Brooklyn for 26 years. She’s been a board member of Three Parks since 2009 which she has found to be the ideal place to be involved in electoral politics as well as issues like fracking; the efforts of our government to cut Social Security, Medicaid and Food Stamps; and the efforts of the 1% to pass trade agreements that will make profits more important than our environment, our health, and everyone’s right to a living wage.

Abigail McGloster—is an active member of Three Parks and enjoys working with the club in many different capacities, such as hosting committee events and gathering signatures for candidates. She has been a resident of the neighborhood for 14 years. She is an Executive Board member of Douglas Houses and captain of her building. He also served on CB 7, co-chaired the Urban Renewal sub-committee, and served on the committee that opposed the Westway Highway. He served on CB 1, chaired the Battery Park Committee during planning phase, led the Tenants Committee of his apartment building, organized rent strikes, and served on the Co-op Negotiating Committee. He has volunteered at the Club’s storefronts, including the 2012 Obama/Biden storefront.

He designed the first Three Parks Website (1995) and is the layout designer for the Club’s monthly newsletter. Locally educated at P.S. 163, P.S. 118 Joan of Arc, Louis D. Brandeis High School, and Fordham University (Bronx, NY), Gerald presently has a television show, “In Harlem,” which has aired for over 14 years on MNN. Gerald is called the “Mayor of 101st Street” because he knows and speaks to everyone.

Judy Wood – has been a Club member “from the early days” and has served in many capacities to the best of her abilities, including board member, newsletter editor, first Vice President, petitioner, and storefront staffer. Judy is proud to be a very strong advocate for Democratic candidates and campaigns.

The Bottled Water Epidemic

By Erl Kimmich

First of all, thanks to David Camacho for his tireless efforts to help cure people of the bottled water epidemic. He really got me thinking and I had to do some research. The contribution to the waste stream that bottled water represents, the cost: hundreds and even thousands time more than the same quantity of tap water, and the air pollution caused in the manufacture of the plastic bottles should give people plenty to think on. The clincher is that the FDA which is responsible for testing and standards of bottled water does not require the same kind of rigorous testing that the EPA requires of tap water. In New York City, we have about 1,000 testing locations where samples are taken for approximately 200,000 tests of our water. All this is good news.

However, there might be lead in our drinking water because some of us live in buildings where the piping is old and the lead solder that was used can now be leaching into our drinking water as it is pumped through the building piping to our sink faucets. You can do a very easy and inexpensive lead test to check to see if your water is contaminated. The lead test kit is available in your hardware store or online. If lead is detected in your water, it is advised to let the water run for 30 seconds to flush out the line of the water that was absorbing the lead.

Many New Yorkers, preferring to err on the side of caution, opt out for one of the many filtering options that are available at the hardware store or online. As older buildings replace old lines, the problem is being solved.

We New Yorkers know the subway is expensive enough to burn a hole in our pockets. Paying for bottled water won't put that fire out or improve my health. Thank heavens for our tap water! Not to mention that we have so much of it, we use it to hose down the sidewalks!

If you want to check out a cool map of where our tap water comes from and more please see the links below:

Flint, MI: Racism & Austerity Gone Awry

By Wendy Dannett

Flint, Michigan is the city which has lately been in the news due to the serious pollution of residents' drinking water. In 2014, a money manager was appointed by Governor Rick Snyder to oversee the city's finances. The manager, Dan Wyant, recommended the city's water source be switched from Lake Huron to the Flint River to save money. Unlike Lake Huron, the Flint River is highly polluted, mostly with industrial waste. In addition, Mr. Wyant did not want to spend money on corrosion-control chemicals, (costing only $100 per day) which would have prevented lead from leaching into the water from old pipes, connections and fixtures. The result was that the residents of Flint were poisoned with high levels of lead, causing brain damage and other toxins causing vision and memory problems, skin lesions and hair loss.

How could this travesty have occurred? At first, the Michigan administration denied any knowledge there was a problem, including Governor Snyder and Mr. Wyant. But at the same time they were dismissing residents' complaints about the ill tasting and looking water, the government was sending water coolers with purified water to government offices. Memos regarding this have only recently been divulged. Since most of the people living in Flint are African American and poor (56 percent), it is difficult not to see this as racism and class issues.

Governor Snyder apologized to the city of Flint on December 29 for the crisis and accepted the resignation of Dan Wyant. However, the Detroit Free Press reported that records obtained by the Michigan ACLU showed that elevated lead levels in Flint's drinking water "would have spurred action much sooner if the results of city testing... in June 2015 had not been revised by the DEQ to wrongly indicate the water was safe to drink." (The report about installing water coolers with purified water only came out at the end of January 2016.)

Is Mr. Snyder's apology enough? Many think not, including Secretary Clinton and Senator Sanders. Sanders thinks Governor Snyder should be fired; Michael Moore thinks the people of Michigan should revolt. Governor Snyder has finally declared a state of emergency and is trying to deflect more blame. But as chief executive in Michigan, with an aggressive agenda of cost cutting and austerity, responsibility lies with him.

I find this situation a horrific and inexcusable tragedy. Matters have been made worse by the recent revelations of unspeakably filthy conditions in Detroit's public schools, which are being overseen by the same Dan Wyant.

Powerball, Indian Point and Angel Wings

By Cy A. Adler

While waiting for the M-96 bus, I noticed an ad for "Powerball." I went into the grocery store and bought a ticket for $2. When the woman in back of me asked for a ticket, the store keeper said: "All sold out. No more." I turned to her and said, "I'll sell you half of my ticket for a dollar; I don't need a billion dollars—five hundred million is enough for me." She hesitated and then said: "Here's my card. I live two blocks from here. Just give me your name and email and when I win, I'll contact you." She handed me a dollar.

Alas, we did not win the big prize. The odds against us winning were only 292,000,000 to one. Playing Powerball caused me to wonder about the odds at Indian Point and its nuclear power plant which has been generating electricity for over 30 years. Indian Point is 30 miles north of where I live. It could blow up and kill me. What are the odds of that happening? What is the risk of my dying from a nuclear accident? I would prefer getting my electricity from windmills.

Recently riding to Port Ivory on the Richmond Terrace bus, I spotted a big, motionless windmill on the other side of the Kill Van Kull in Bayonne. Three beautiful but motionless vanes. This is the first wind turbine I have seen in the NY–NJ area. I googled it. Yes, it is there in Bayonne, but the generator doesn't work. It was made in Italy. Gangs of lawyers are poring over who should pay for the $300,000+ repair job.

I would like to see the Indian Point electric generator complex replaced by windmills powered by a steady wind supplied by angels flapping their wings. I wonder how the probability of that happening compares with the chance of winning the Powerball lottery.
